The President's Comments

Regarding the present Lockdown, it's hard to work out how many people seem to meet. What I don't understand is the Government says only up to 30 people outside, but the Council says we can have up to 30 people inside. So who is right and who is wrong? We need more clarification before we attempt to open.

Another thing is about the jab. How do we see this working if someone has not had the jab? Will they be allowed to come to a meeting or not?

Personally I think that anyone eligible to have the jab and turns it down should not be allowed to come to the Club. This is for the safety of all Members and their families.

If we have to be patient and wait a little bit longer before we return to the Club, hopefully this will keep us all safe, so I think we should do just that – wait a little longer, and stay safe.

I have just had a read of this week's Cage & Aviary. In Club News it said that some Clubs are trying to open in June.

I personally think this is a bit early, especially with the speed the Indian Variant is spreading.

It was also interesting to read that some of the Clubs are not having an Open Show this year, but will go ahead with a Club Show. This, I think, makes common sense. Food for thought.

Birds

Barry and I have been hunting for Gouldians for quite some time. When we found some, although they were all very young, we decided to buy them and put them all in my aviary with two adult Cocks belonging to Barry. I think they are about 10-11 months' old. Some have gone to nest and are currently sitting on eggs.

I also had a single Fife Hen trying to go to nest,. I felt sorry for said Hen so I rang Barry to see if he had a spare Fife Cock. He had, so within an hour it was in my shed. I put it straight into the flight with the Hen. Needless to say they mated straight away. I am happy to say they immediately built a nest. She has laid five eggs and they are all full. Should hatch any day now. The point of this story is, if people can help one another out, good things can happen.

STOP PRESS.....

I have just had a week at my daughter's chalet. The weather was wonderful, so I would sit with a cup of tea and watch the birds. One morning as I was sitting there, about five Linnets came down, one was almost sitting on my toe, foraging in the grass and picking at the seed heads. There were several Pied Wagtails flitting around in the grass and every now and again they would fly up under the gutters to get insects and spiders. Goldfinches were also hopping round in the grass.

Blackbirds obviously had babies somewhere close as they had beaks full of worms and insects.

There were quite a few Starlings and Pigeons hopping and running around the grass, but the most birds around were obviously Gulls of several types.

Crows and Magpies were very wary and did not stay still for long, but on the whole, the birds seemed happy to be around humans. So you could see the birds in all their glory.

I know I have said before about these birds, but they are too beautiful not to mention again. I could sit all day and watch their antics in the wild.

Pete

The Club Secretary's Comments

June's meeting will not go ahead as the committee at the hall says the Council's guidance is that we can only have 30 people in the hall. I did ask if members could contact me and let me know their feelings or if they would or wouldn't come to the meeting. Only 14 people got in touch so there is no way of knowing how many people would turn up and if we would exceed the 30-person limit. If we had exceeded the limit this would have caused us an issue with who are the 30 that are allowed in? Is it the first 30 that arrive? The first 30 to arrive and have had both jobs? Either way I'm sure this would have upset someone and that's not what we are trying to promote at the club. So I think it's best not to open the club until all restrictions have been lifted. We will know by 21st June what the new rules will be, so not long to wait now.

Richard

Open Show

“NEST PANS” by Brenda Kettle

Well, here I am again folks, writing another article for our magazine. Please accept my apologies if you are thinking 'Oh no, her again!' with seeing my name on articles, but, I am trying to supply 'information snippets' to help keep this magazine going, so my apologies! I also hope my tips may help some of our novices and maybe a 'veteran or two' in bird keeping!

I decided to write this in response to Paul's article in May, regarding the use of carbolic soap for securing nest felts into pans. Recently, this year, there were a number of questions on Facebook regarding – 'How do breeders secure their nest felts into their nest pans?' Surprisingly, there were quite a few responses in favour of using carbolic soap. I wonder how many members of this club do use carbolic soap to fix their nest felts in? Does your decision depend on the type of nest pan that you decide to use, and whether they are for British birds or canaries?

As you all know I keep Fife canaries and I personally would not use carbolic soap in my nest pans. My reason for this is, that I use plastic nest pans that have slots in them, so, for me, using carbolic soap is not a particularly good idea, as it may well squeeze through the slots. My concern would be, 'is it possible that the birds could ingest the soap and possibly cause problems?' Maybe a fellow member in this club may be able to answer that question?

Yes, some hens will rip felts apart even when supplied with copious amounts of nesting material, as well as plucking their chicks!! When I first started with birds a lot of time was spent over the winter months laboriously sewing the felts in by hand, but I didn't know any different then. It was down to a good friend of mine who told me his secret of felt securing which is very quick.

I use paper fasteners in the form of a round head with two prongs underneath, which can be purchased from Wilkinsons, or good stationers shops. I make an initial small hole in the felt then push the two prongs through the felt and a slot, before opening up the prongs underneath the pan. Job done, with very little effort being used.

NOTE: Before securing, the underside is smothered with brown diatom powder, then on the topside, for mite prevention.

As Paul says, rightly so, we all do things differently, so whatever works for you 'Stick with it', unless you pick up a good tip somewhere along the way which you may find to be easier for you.

Brenda
